On the first How page, we are naming the Cyber thread event, adding any details about how it occurred, and what its current status is.

The first block allows you to name the event–we'll name this event one–and if you do name the event, you must select a determination. So these are the five choices blocked, confirmed, failed attempt, false positive, or suspected. We're going to say confirmed.

And the status of the investigation. Is it closed? Is it new, or is it open, and so we're going to say new.

Optionally, you can add a detection method, and we'll just say human review.

And at this point, the Cyber threat event is active. You can add more event details here, so I'm going to say detail one and then just add that to the cart. So, just the details are added to the cart at this point. The event is already added overall, and from there, you can continue.
