The where page records the location of targets and attackers if you know them.

To activate the form, select yes if you've been able to pinpoint a location. The first tab will be the target tab, and there are numerous levels of fidelity that you can record for location. You only need to record what you know, so if that's simply the region, we can record that or drill down to the country and further down to lat/long, city, and postal code.

From here, you can select the target whose location you are recording and add them to the cart.

As with most forms, adding to cart resets the form so you could add another target if you have one. The same is true for the attacker. You could select the location and the country, the lat/long, address, and so forth and then link it to an attacker you previously created again, adding them to cart.

And from there, you can continue.
